Section 1. Global developments in the field of asylum in 2022

Icon for global developments in asylum

To set the broader context within which asylum-related trends in Europe emerged, this section provides an overview of key themes in forced displacement at the global level.A combination of crises, including new and ongoing conflicts, climate shocks, geopolitical unrest, violence and persecution, led millions of people to flee their homes in 2022. 1

The Russian invasion of Ukraine caused the fastest and one of the largest forced displacement crises since World War II. 2 Other pre-existing, profound situations of displacement around the world persisted or grew, pushing the number of people displaced globally to historic highs in 2022, reaching approximately 103 million. 3
