2.1.1 First and second phases of CEAS and the 2016 reform proposals

The Common European Asylum System (CEAS) is a legal and policy framework developed to guarantee harmonised and uniform standards for people seeking international protection in the EU. Based on an understanding that the EU needs to have a common approach in implementing transparent, effective and equitable procedures,<sup>75</sup> CEAS emphasises a shared responsibility to process applications for international protection in a dignified manner and ensuring fair treatment.<sup>76</sup> At its core, CEAS aims to achieve:

-  A clear and functional process to determine which country is responsible for examining an application for protection;
-  A set of common standards to conduct fair and efficient asylum procedures;
-  A set of common minimum conditions for the dignified reception of applicants for protection; and
-  Convergence on the criteria for granting protection statuses and for the content of protection associated with those statuses.<sup>77</sup>

In the first phase of CEAS (1999-2005), six key legislative instruments were adopted in order to establish minimum standards for the asylum procedure across EU countries: the Temporary Protection Directive, the Eurodac Regulation, the Reception of Asylum Seekers Directive, the Dublin II Regulation, the Qualification Directive and the Asylum Procedures Directive. During this period, EU countries had varied experiences with asylum flows, while protection standards were deemed not to be strong enough. To improve the functioning of CEAS, a number of substantive amendments were introduced to five of the key legal instruments that govern the minimum standards of the European asylum system:<sup>78</sup> <sup>79</sup>

-  The recast Asylum Procedures Directive;<sup>80</sup>
-  The recast Reception Conditions Directive;<sup>81</sup>
-  The recast Qualification Directive;<sup>82</sup>
-  The recast Dublin III Regulation;<sup>83</sup> and
-  The recast Eurodac Regulation.<sup>84</sup>

The increased – and often uneven – pressure that national asylum and reception systems in EU+ countries faced since 2015 underlined the importance of having an EU-wide framework to manage mixed migration flows in a consistent and coordinated way. To further refine CEAS, in 2016 the European Commission presented two packages of reform proposals for core components of CEAS, including:<sup>vi</sup>

-  A reform of the Dublin system to better balance responsibility and solidarity for processing asylum applications by EU+ countries;<sup>85</sup>
-  Steps toward reinforcing the Eurodac regulation, including increasing the efficiency of the EU database on fingerprints for asylum applicants;<sup>86</sup>
-  Strengthening the mandate of EASO toward a fully-fledged agency for asylum;<sup>87</sup>

- Replacing the Asylum Procedures Directive with a regulation directly applicable in national asylum systems to harmonise procedures across EU+ countries and achieve convergence in recognition rates;<sup>88</sup>
- Replacing the Qualification Directive with a regulation directly applicable in national asylum systems to further harmonise protection standards and rights of beneficiaries of international protection;<sup>89</sup>
- Reforming the Reception Conditions Directive to ensure that applicants for international protection benefit from harmonised and dignified reception standards and prevent secondary movements and abuse;<sup>90</sup> <sup>91</sup> and
- As part of the initiatives on reforming CEAS, the European Commission put forth a proposal to establish a permanent Union Resettlement Framework to provide legal and safe pathways to the EU, replacing existing, ad hoc schemes.

While considerable work was accomplished in policy implementation and practical cooperation among Member States during 2016-2019, the negotiations for the reform package seemed to have reached an impasse. With 2019 being a year of institutional transitions at the EU level, further advances were expected as of 2020. Since the proposals were set forth, progress toward their adoption was uneven. The discussions on the EU Asylum Agency, the Eurodac Regulation, the Union Resettlement Framework, the Qualification Regulation and the Reception Conditions Directive made significant headway.<sup>92</sup> At the same time, agreement on the proposals for a reformed Dublin system and an Asylum Procedures Regulation could not be reached due to fundamental political differences among EU Member States. In addition, some Member States expressed reservations in adopting one or more of the proposals separately before all were ready for adoption.
