

Please cite as: EUAA, '3.12.3. COI and statelessness' in Asylum Report 2024, June 2024.

3.12.3. COI and statelessness

3.12.3. COI and statelessness

At times, there seems to be a gap in comprehensive information on statelessness and nationality rights in COI.856This information is essential to effectively assess protection needs, as an applicant's stateless status in the country of former habitual residence may be wholly or partially linked to their fear of persecution.

To this end, Asylos, a UK-registered charity, launched a project to address information gaps on statelessness-focused COI.857Asylos developed a Principles Document858 to share key research and a training handbook to guide COI researchers on statelessness.859 Asylos also partnered with Asylum Aid to bring a series of training workshops on statelessness-focused COI.860

At the national level, the COI unit in Denmark has supported work on statelessness within the Danish Immigration Service. This includes the identification of stateless groups and, in particular, children born to single mothers who cannot transfer citizenship to their children. In addition, the Danish Immigration Service published a report on access to health services for stateless Palestinians in Lebanon.881

- 856European Network on Statelessness (ENS). (2024). Input to the Asylum Report 2024.
- 857Asylos. (2023). Statelessness-Focused COI Research.
- 858Asylos. (1 March 2023). Principles for Conducting Country of Origin Information Research on Statelessness.
- 859Asylos. (2023). Conducting Country of Origin Conducting Country of Origin Information Research on Statelessness.
- 860Asylos. (12 July 2023). Register for our new Statelessness-focused Country of Origin Information Workshops.
- 881Danish Immigration Service | Udlændingestyrelsen. (February 2023). Lebanon: Access to Health Care Services for Palestinian Refugees.

© European Union Agency for Asylum 2026 | Email: info@euaa.europa.eu