

2.6. Women and girls

(a) General overview of the situation of women and girls in Sudan

For background information, see section 2.5 of the EUAA Sudan report – Country Focus \(April 2024\).

Sources indicated that sexual violence against women and girls has a long history in Sudan and that it is being used as a weapon of war.^{386} Women and girls are sexually exploited when seeking refuge in areas controlled by armed actors.^{387} Victims of sexual violence are seen as unsuitable for marriage and a source of shame for the family.^{388} Healthcare centres reported an increasing number of unmarried women with unwanted pregnancies as a result of rape.^{389} While Sudanese law allows abortion within 90 days of pregnancy, pregnant women must obtain first a permission from the Office of the Public Prosecutor,^{390} which, due to the current breakdown of the country's institutions, forces many pregnant women to undergo unsafe abortions.^{391}

Child marriages are widespread due to the belief that by doing so, parents protect their girls from rape and preserve their perceived honour.^{392} Forced marriages of girls and women to RSF members are increasing, with cases involving parents surrendering their daughters under threat or in exchange for financial compensation.^{393}

Trafficking of women and girls for sexual exploitation, sexual slavery, child marriage, and the recruitment of minors by armed groups in Sudan, continued to be reported.^{394} There are reports of women and girls being sold at slave markets in areas controlled by the RSF, including in Darfur.^{395}

Female genital mutilation (FGM) continues to be a widespread practice, with about 87 % of Sudanese women aged 15-49 and 31 % of girls younger than 15, having undergone the procedure.^{396} FGM is performed, among others, on girls as young as 4 years old as well as women who are about to be married and pregnant women.^{397}

Freedom House indicated that 'women continue to face disadvantages in many areas of the law, and perpetrators of widespread crimes against women—including during armed conflicts—have generally enjoyed impunity'.^{398} The same source indicated that women are denied equality of rights regarding property and inheritance laws, both under Sharia and customary practices.^{399}

☐ (b) Sexual violence and conflict-related sexual violence

For background information, see section 2.5.1. of the EUAA Sudan report – Country Focus \(April 2024\).

Sexual violence has a long history in Sudan and is used as a weapon to terrorise communities.^{400} Rape and gang rape are widespread and used on a 'large-scale' during the invasion of cities, attacks against IDP camps, prolonged occupation of residential areas, and against persons fleeing conflict-affected areas.^{401} Sexual violence also takes place during raids of homes in search for weapons, ammunitions, or male relatives,^{402} and on roads.^{403} According to the UN FFM for the Sudan, sexual violence, including rape, also takes place for 'opportunistic reasons' due to general impunity, the militarisation of urban areas, displacement, increasing poverty, food insecurity, and barriers to access public services.⁴⁰⁴ Large-scale sexual violence, including rape and gang-rape, was documented by the UN FFM for the Sudan in cities and IDP camps in West Darfur, South Darfur, Central Darfur, and Greater Khartoum.⁴⁰⁵ According to data verified by the UN FFM, incidents of sexual violence increased in the weeks leading up to RSF attacks.⁴⁰⁶ Most victims of sexual violence are women between 17 and 35 years old, although there have been documented cases of victims as young as 8 and old as 75 years old.⁴⁰⁷

Perpetrators include the SAF and its intelligence agencies, and the RSF and its allied militias.⁴⁰⁸ Most cases are attributed to RSF, accounting for 80% of the documented cases.⁴⁰⁹ Sources indicated that perpetrators threatened victims with weapons, including firearms, knives, and whips, and subjected them to punching, beatings, lashings,⁴¹⁰ and the widespread use of racist slurs specific to non-Arabs with darker skin such as zurga or nuba ('black'), or pejorative attributes such as umbay ('slave').⁴¹¹ Sexual violence incidents often take place in the presence of relatives, including children, who are also subjected to lashings and beatings.⁴¹² According to a local source interviewed by Human Rights Watch, most cases of rape involved the participation of two or more RSF combatants as perpetrators.⁴¹³

According to the UN FFM for the Sudan, members of the SAF are accused of sexually exploiting women and girls seeking refuge in areas controlled by them, by offering food in exchange.⁴¹⁴ The same report indicated that there are cases of 'survival sex' whereby women and girls engage in sexual activities to access food or humanitarian assistance.⁴¹⁵ Human Rights Watch reported that, according to local accounts, the RSF regularly abduct women and girls, hold them in detention houses, often for weeks, and subject them to sexual violence and force them to provide domestic services, in what local sources define as a 'right of ownership' over them.⁴¹⁶ The same source indicated that victims are beaten, tortured, and denied access to food.⁴¹⁷

The UN FFM for the Sudan indicated that although there are no comprehensive statistics on conflict-related violence, including sexual violence, based on open and confidential sources it consulted, hospitals and service providers documented at least 400 victims of sexual violence between April 2023 and July 2024, most of them women and girls.⁴¹⁸ Further, based on information provided by sources, 63 cases of sexual violence were reported in Khartoum between May 2023 and July 2024, and, without providing further information, 40 % of cases recorded between December 2023 and April 2024 took place in Al Jazirah state, all attributed to the RSF.⁴¹⁹ The UN Deputy High Commissioner for Human Rights indicated in September 2024 that its office had documented 97 incidents involving 172 victims, mostly women and girls, and that 81 % of these incidents were attributed to the RSF.⁴²⁰

Sexual violence is largely underreported in the country due to a culture of silence, stigma, social isolation, and, in some cases, killings, as well as a domestic legislation that puts an 'excessive burden' on the victims wishing to file a report.⁴²¹ Additionally, sexual violence cases are not reported due to insecurity, displacements, blackouts, and the collapse of healthcare services,⁴²² as well as the social stigma associated with receiving sexual and reproductive health services.⁴²³ Human Rights Watch indicated that, according to local healthcare providers it interviewed, the RSF tries to prevent their acts of sexual violence from being documented by threatening healthcare providers if they provide information to the Ministry of Health or international organisations, including the UN.⁴²⁴ According to the UN FFM report, in Sudanese society 'rape' only takes place when the penis penetrates the vagina and breaks the hymen, and other forms of rape, including anal rape, rape with body parts such as fingers, or other forms of penetration, are referred to by victims, and generally considered, 'sexual harassment'.⁴²⁵ Authorities failed to investigate sexual violence committed by state forces and impeded women rights organisations from investigating such crimes.⁴²⁶

Access to services for victims of sexual violence is difficult due to the breakdown of, attacks on, and occupation of, healthcare institutions, as well as the 'significant restrictions' in medical supplies.⁴²⁷ For example, medical supplies for post-rape care are in short-supply and often unavailable due to the destruction of medical facilities, like in Khartoum and Darfur.⁴²⁸ Critical medical supplies that are not readily available included medicines to prevent and/or treat HIV/Aids and Hepatitis B infections.⁴²⁹ Human Rights Watch indicated that, according to healthcare workers in the Khartoum area, some victims of rape arrived at the hospital with 'debilitating physical injuries' as a result of sexual violence and, in at least four cases, these injuries led to the death of the victim.430

Human Rights Watch indicated that, according to a UN source in Khartoum, healthcare centres are noticing a 'surging' number of unmarried women with unwanted pregnancies as a result of rape.431 Sudanese law indicates that abortions following pregnancies are allowed within 90 days of pregnancy, and that pregnant women must obtain first a permission from the Office of the Public Prosecutor, presenting, as evidence, a police complaint and a report by a medical institution.432 Sources indicated that due to the breakdown of the country's institutions, obtaining a legal permission for abortion is difficult, forcing many to undergo unsafe abortion outside medical facilities.433 Human Rights Watch provided the example of a woman in Khartoum who was raped and shot and whose husband expelled her from their house and took away their children after she could not have an abortion performed by the local medical centre.434

The UN FFM for the Sudan indicated that

'the 2009 amendment to the 1991 Criminal Act of 1991 criminalizes rape and other acts of a sexual nature as underlying crimes of crimes against humanity and war crimes; however, their definitions also fall short of the definitions under customary international law. For instance, the crime of forced pregnancy as a crime against humanity adds the element of 'affecting the ethnic composition'. Furthermore, victims/survivors of rape and other forms of sexual violence face hurdles in reporting such crimes at the national level, including due to fears of stigma, reprisals and/or being prosecuted for adultery. Concerns have in this regard been shared with the Fact-Finding Mission over the legal procedures necessary to prove rape, in particular the obligatory use of Form No. 8, a medical report which has become unavailable in many health facilities or police stations'.435

☐ (c) Forced/early marriage and conflict-related forced/early marriage

The UN FFM report indicated that the (Muslim) Personal Status Act of 1991, 'which governs familial relations such as marriage, divorce, child custody and inheritance and is primarily based on Sharia law, permits forced marriages of Sudanese women and girls. It provides that the marriage of a Muslim woman or girl shall be concluded by her male guardian and authorizes the marriage of children as young as ten, with the authorization of a judge'.436

In March 2024, a group of UN experts, including the Special Rapporteur on Trafficking in Persons, Especially Women and Children,437 issued a communication on trafficking and sexual exploitation in Sudan, pointing to an increase in early and forced marriages of children during the current conflict reportedly as a result of family separations and gender-based violence that results in rape and unwanted pregnancies.438 Sources similarly pointed to the increasing number of cases of forced marriages of girls and women to RSF members, with cases involving parents surrendering their daughters under threat or in exchange for financial compensation.439 In some cases, relatives agree to an early marriage in the belief that by doing so they would be protecting a woman or girl from rape outside of marriage.440

According to an Emergency Response Room volunteer interviewed by Human Rights Watch in February 2024 in Khartoum, early marriage of underage girls is 'quite a widespread practice' as '[p]eople are seeking ways to protect their girls from rape and preserve what they think is their honor, especially those without an option to leave'.441 Another local source interviewed by Human Rights Watch indicated that '[m]ost of the marriages happened because of the combination of fear and huge amounts of money and gold offered to the family of the young bride'.442 The same source further reported that women are also forced into marriages by RSF forces and that in Khartoum, for example, there are 'enormous numbers of marriages' as the 'RSF wanted wives', particularly commanders.443

The Tahrir Institute for Middle East Policy (TIMEP), a Washington DC-based non-for-profit organisation that provides analysis on Middle East and northern Africa issues, reported on the existence of 'matchmakers', people who work for the RSF 'facilitating' marriages for RSF fighters, and that according to a local lawyer who documents these cases, '[m]ost of these marriages are arranged expeditiously; families are notified to 'prepare' their daughters, typically within a day or two. This leaves little time for any escape attempts'.444 The same lawyer provided the example of a forced marriage in the Khalawda area, Al Jazirah state, as an example, where the girl's father

'unexpectedly invited the villagers to her wedding, only for villagers to realize that the 'groom' was one of the RSF fighters who had attacked the village earlier. Despite the girl's vehement opposition to the union, her father compelled her to marry the fighter. While disguised as a traditional wedding in terms of celebrations and customs, the lawyer argued that its primary purpose was to protect the girl and her family'.445

According to Girls Not Brides, the prevalence rate of marriages in Sudan of children 15 years old or younger is 12 %, and 18 years old or younger is 34 %.446

☐ (d) Trafficking in human beings

The 2014 Anti-Human Trafficking Law criminalises sex and labour trafficking with a penalty between three- and ten-years' imprisonment for offenses involving adult male victims, and between five- and 20-years' imprisonment for offenses involving adult female and child victims.447

Sources indicated that Sudan has historically been a country of origin, transit, and destination for victims of modern slavery and human trafficking.448 Common forms of trafficking include early and forced marriage, forced or bonded labour, child labour, domestic servitude, and forced prostitution.449 According to a report by Global Partners Governance (GPG), an international development organisation with presence in over 40 countries providing political analysis and research, factors that contribute to the likelihood of being a victim of trafficking include the absence of protection and shelter, widespread displacement, limited access to education and health services, food insecurity, poor livelihood conditions, lack of awareness regarding available services, and insufficient service provision.450 Sources indicated that since the onset of the conflict in April 2023, risks have exacerbated.451 The group of UN experts pointed to increasing reports of trafficking in persons, especially women and girls, for the purpose of sexual exploitation, sexual slavery, child marriage, and the recruitment of minors by armed groups in Sudan, and that access to support by victims has deteriorated since December 2023.452 The same source also indicated that there are reports of women and girls being sold at slave markets in areas controlled by the RSF, including in Darfur.453

The USDOS report on human trafficking indicated that Sudanese women and girls living in IDP camps and rural areas are exploited by criminal groups into domestic work and sex trafficking. The same source indicated that '[s]ome government officials or border guards exploited women and girls fleeing the country in sex trafficking in exchange for visas or safe passage to neighboring countries'. Authorities did not report the results of prior investigations into allegations of sexual exploitation and abuse by officials.454

For additional information, see section 2.7(d) Trafficking in human beings.

☐ (e) Female genital mutilation (FGM)

Female genital mutilation (FGM) refers to 'all procedures involving partial or total removal of the external female genitalia or other injury to the female genital organs for non-medical reasons'.455 Although FGM was criminalised in Sudan in 2020,456 the practice is still 'widespread'.457 A 2024 essay on gender in Sudan in the context of the current war indicated that since the early 2000s, 'traditional midwives' and 'cutters' who used to profit from performing FGM in the past, started to work in national public health campaigns to convince families to end FGM.⁴⁵⁸ According to the authors of the essay, after April 2023 and with healthcare infrastructure affected by the conflict, FGM was likely resurging as salaries for midwives have not been paid and there is no enforcement for the implementation of the law that criminalises FGM.⁴⁵⁹

Sudan has one of the highest rates of FGM in the world.⁴⁶⁰ According to a 2014 report⁴⁶¹ by Sudan's Central Bureau of Statistics (CBS) and UNICEF, about 87 % of Sudanese women aged 15-49 and 31 % of girls younger than 15, have undergone FGM.⁴⁶² Regionally, rates vary from the low of 45.4 % in Central Darfur, to 97 % in North Kordofan, 97.3 % in East Darfur, and 97.6 % in North Darfur.⁴⁶³ The report by Sudan's CBS and UNICEF indicated that, in Sudan, 'FGM is generally carried out on girls between the ages of 4 and 14, [but] it is also done to infants, women who are about to be married and, sometimes, to women who are pregnant with their first child or who have just given birth'.⁴⁶⁴

FGM is very common among Sudanese IDPs living in refugee camps in Chad.⁴⁶⁵ The Guardian reported that rates of FGM in Chad (34.1 % of women, overall) are particularly higher in the south and east of the country, which is where the camps for Sudanese IDPs are located.⁴⁶⁶ In a visit carried out by The Guardian to the Adré refugee camp in Chad, the journalist met three girls aged between three and nine years old who were being 'prepared' by their family to be cut by putting henna tattoos on the girls' feet and fingers, which is a 'traditional way of "celebrating" the FGM procedure', and according to a social worker at the camp, FGM 'takes place in secret because it contravened Chadian laws', adding that children and married women alike undergo the procedure.⁴⁶⁷

386

UN, Independent International Fact-Finding Mission for the Sudan, 23 October 2024, url, para. 165; Freedom House, Freedom in the World 2024: Sudan, February 2024, url

387

UN, Independent International Fact-Finding Mission for the Sudan, 23 October 2024, url, para. 171; USDOS, 2024 Trafficking in Persons Report: Sudan, 24 June 2024, url. See also: ACJPS, Forced prostitution: The effects of the Sudan war on women and girls, 30 September 2024, url, p. 5

388

UN, Independent International Fact-Finding Mission for the Sudan, 23 October 2024, url, para. 208

389

HRW, "Khartoum is not Safe for Women Anymore!": Sexual Violence against Women and Girls in Sudan's Capital, July 2024, url, p. 50

390

UN, Independent International Fact-Finding Mission for the Sudan, 23 October 2024, url, para. 207; HRW, "Khartoum is not Safe for Women Anymore!": Sexual Violence against Women and Girls in Sudan's Capital, July 2024, url, p. 27

391

UN, Independent International Fact-Finding Mission for the Sudan, 23 October 2024, url, para. 207; HRW, "Khartoum is not Safe for Women Anymore!": Sexual Violence against Women and Girls in Sudan's Capital, July 2024, url, pp. 27-28

392

HRW, "Khartoum is not Safe for Women Anymore!": Sexual Violence against Women and Girls in Sudan's Capital, July 2024, url, p. 44

393

UN, Independent International Fact-Finding Mission for the Sudan, 23 October 2024, url, para. 200; TIMEP, Forced Marriage in Sudan: A Silent Crime Perpetrated in War and Peace, 21 November 2024, url

394

OHCHR, Sudan: Trafficking for sexual exploitation and recruitment of children on the rise, warn UN experts, 22 March 2024, url

395

OHCHR, Sudan: Trafficking for sexual exploitation and recruitment of children on the rise, warn UN experts, 22 March 2024, url

396

Sudan and UNICEF, Sudan: Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 2014, 2014, url, p. xii

397

Sudan and UNICEF, Sudan: Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 2014, 2014, url, p. 220

398

Freedom House, Freedom in the World 2024: Sudan, February 2024, url

399

Freedom House, Freedom in the World 2024: Sudan, February 2024, url

400

UN, Independent International Fact-Finding Mission for the Sudan, 23 October 2024, url, para. 165. See also: Freedom House, Freedom in the World 2024: Sudan, February 2024, url

401

UN, Independent International Fact-Finding Mission for the Sudan, 23 October 2024, url, para. 166

402

UN, Independent International Fact-Finding Mission for the Sudan, 23 October 2024, url, para. 185;
Refugees International, The Nuba Mountains: A Window into the Sudan Crisis, August 2024, url, p. 11

403

SIHA Network, Gezira State and the Forgotten Atrocities A Report on Conflict related Sexual Violence, June 2024, url, p. 6

404

UN, Independent International Fact-Finding Mission for the Sudan, 23 October 2024, url, para. 173

405

UN, Independent International Fact-Finding Mission for the Sudan, 23 October 2024, url, para. 177

406

UN, Independent International Fact-Finding Mission for the Sudan, 23 October 2024, url, para. 179

407

UN, Independent International Fact-Finding Mission for the Sudan, 23 October 2024, url, para. 171. See also:
HRW, "Khartoum is not Safe for Women Anymore!": Sexual Violence against Women and Girls in Sudan's
Capital, July 2024, url, pp. 2-3

408

UN, Independent International Fact-Finding Mission for the Sudan, 23 October 2024, url, paras. 167-168

409

OHCHR, Sudan: This tragedy needs to end, now, urges Deputy High Commissioner, 10 September 2024, url

410

UN, Independent International Fact-Finding Mission for the Sudan, 23 October 2024, url, paras. 181-182.
See also: HRW, "Khartoum is not Safe for Women Anymore!": Sexual Violence against Women and Girls in Sudan's Capital, July 2024, url, p. 38

411

UN, Independent International Fact-Finding Mission for the Sudan, 23 October 2024, url, paras. 181-182

412

UN, Independent International Fact-Finding Mission for the Sudan, 23 October 2024, url, para. 187; HRW, "Khartoum is not Safe for Women Anymore!": Sexual Violence against Women and Girls in Sudan's Capital, July 2024, url, p. 4. See also: SIHA Network, Gezira State and the Forgotten Atrocities A Report on Conflict related Sexual Violence, June 2024, url, p. 8

413

HRW, "Khartoum is not Safe for Women Anymore!": Sexual Violence against Women and Girls in Sudan's Capital, July 2024, url, p. 38

415

UN, Independent International Fact-Finding Mission for the Sudan, 23 October 2024, url, para. 200

416

HRW, "Khartoum is not Safe for Women Anymore!": Sexual Violence against Women and Girls in Sudan's Capital, July 2024, url, p. 39; USDOS, 2024 Trafficking in Persons Report: Sudan, 24 June 2024, url

417

HRW, "Khartoum is not Safe for Women Anymore!": Sexual Violence against Women and Girls in Sudan's Capital, July 2024, url, p. 39

418

UN, Independent International Fact-Finding Mission for the Sudan, 23 October 2024, url, para. 174

419

UN, Independent International Fact-Finding Mission for the Sudan, 23 October 2024, url, para. 179

420

OHCHR, Sudan: This tragedy needs to end, now, urges Deputy High Commissioner, 10 September 2024, url

421

UN, Independent International Fact-Finding Mission for the Sudan, 23 October 2024, url, para. 176

422

UN, Independent International Fact-Finding Mission for the Sudan, 23 October 2024, url, para. 176

423

HRW, "Khartoum is not Safe for Women Anymore!": Sexual Violence against Women and Girls in Sudan's Capital, July 2024, url, p. 6

424

UN, Independent International Fact-Finding Mission for the Sudan, 23 October 2024, url, para. 180

425

UN, Independent International Fact-Finding Mission for the Sudan, 23 October 2024, url, para. 180

426

HRW, "Khartoum is not Safe for Women Anymore!": Sexual Violence against Women and Girls in Sudan's Capital, July 2024, url, p. 25

427

UN, Independent International Fact-Finding Mission for the Sudan, 23 October 2024, url, para. 211

428

UN, Independent International Fact-Finding Mission for the Sudan, 23 October 2024, url, para. 212

429

HRW, "Khartoum is not Safe for Women Anymore!": Sexual Violence against Women and Girls in Sudan's Capital, July 2024, url, p. 51

430

HRW, "Khartoum is not Safe for Women Anymore!": Sexual Violence against Women and Girls in Sudan's Capital, July 2024, url, p. 4

434

HRW, "Khartoum is not Safe for Women Anymore!": Sexual Violence against Women and Girls in Sudan's Capital, July 2024, url, p. 1

435

UN, Independent International Fact-Finding Mission for the Sudan, 23 October 2024, url, para. 302

437

The UN experts are Siobhán Mullally, Special Rapporteur on trafficking in persons, especially women and children; Tomoya Obokata, Special Rapporteur on contemporary forms of slavery, including its causes and consequences; Mama Fatima Singhateh, Special Rapporteur on the sale, sexual exploitation and sexual abuse of children; Ms Ashwini K.P., Special Rapporteur on contemporary forms of racism, racial discrimination, xenophobia and related intolerance; Paula Gaviria Betancur, Special Rapporteur on the human rights of internally displaced persons. OHCHR, Sudan: Trafficking for sexual exploitation and recruitment of children on the rise, warn UN experts, 22 March 2024, url

440

HRW, "Khartoum is not Safe for Women Anymore!": Sexual Violence against Women and Girls in Sudan's Capital, July 2024, url, p. 4; TIMEP, Forced Marriage in Sudan: A Silent Crime Perpetrated in War and Peace, 21 November 2024, url

443

HRW, "Khartoum is not Safe for Women Anymore!": Sexual Violence against Women and Girls in Sudan's Capital, July 2024, url, p. 45

444

TIMEP, Forced Marriage in Sudan: A Silent Crime Perpetrated in War and Peace, 21 November 2024, url

445

TIMEP, Forced Marriage in Sudan: A Silent Crime Perpetrated in War and Peace, 21 November 2024, url

446

Girls Not Brides, Sudan, n.d., url

447

USDOS, 2024 Trafficking in Persons Report: Sudan, 24 June 2024, url

448

GPG, The impact of conflict on modern slavery and human trafficking in Sudan and the region, 2024, url, p. 1; ACJPS, Forced prostitution: The effects of the Sudan war on women and girls, 30 September 2024, url, p. 4; USDOS, 2024 Trafficking in Persons Report: Sudan, 24 June 2024, url

449

GPG, The impact of conflict on modern slavery and human trafficking in Sudan and the region, 2024, url, p. 1

450

GPG, The impact of conflict on modern slavery and human trafficking in Sudan and the region, 2024, url, p. 5

451

GPG, The impact of conflict on modern slavery and human trafficking in Sudan and the region, 2024, url, p. 1; USDOS, 2024 Trafficking in Persons Report: Sudan, 24 June 2024, url

453

OHCHR, Sudan: Trafficking for sexual exploitation and recruitment of children on the rise, warn UN experts, 22 March 2024, url; see also: Asharq Al-Awsat, A Travesty of The War in Sudan: The Trafficking of Women, 2 February 2024, url

454

USDOS, 2024 Trafficking in Persons Report: Sudan, 24 June 2024, url

455

WHO, Eliminating Female genital mutilation: An interagency statement, 2008, url, p. 1

456

Freedom House, Freedom in the World 2024: Sudan, February 2024, url; The Guardian, Women's rights groups fear FGM is rife among Sudanese refugees in Chad, 18 November 2024, url

457

UN, Independent International Fact-Finding Mission for the Sudan, 23 October 2024, url, para. 205; Freedom House, Freedom in the World 2024: Sudan, February 2024, url

458

Bedri, Nafisa and Tamsin Bradley, The Gendering of Sudan's Brutal War, The Cairo Review of Global Affairs, Spring 2024, url

459

Bedri, Nafisa and Tamsin Bradley, The Gendering of Sudan's Brutal War, The Cairo Review of Global Affairs, Spring 2024, url

460

The Guardian, Women's rights groups fear FGM is rife among Sudanese refugees in Chad, 18 November 2024, url; UNFPA and Women's Refugee Commission, Female genital mutilation in humanitarian settings in the Arab region: Gaps and priorities for prevention and response programming, 2021, url, p. 5

461

The 2014 survey is still considered by sources as a reliable frame of reference on FGM statistics for Sudan. UNFPA and Women's Refugee Commission, Female genital mutilation in humanitarian settings in the Arab region: Gaps and priorities for prevention and response programming, 2021, url, p. 5; CMI, Improved Understanding of FGM/C Abandonment among Sudanese Families in Khartoum and Kassala States, September 2020, url, p. 9

463

UNFPA and Women's Refugee Commission, Female genital mutilation in humanitarian settings in the Arab region: Gaps and priorities for prevention and response programming, 2021, url, p. 5

465

The Guardian, Women's rights groups fear FGM is rife among Sudanese refugees in Chad, 18 November 2024, url

466

The Guardian, Women's rights groups fear FGM is rife among Sudanese refugees in Chad, 18 November 2024, url

467

The Guardian, Women's rights groups fear FGM is rife among Sudanese refugees in Chad, 18 November 2024, url

© European Union Agency for Asylum 2026 | Email: info@euaa.europa.eu