

3.2. Russia

For information regarding Russia's involvement in Syria prior to November 2024, see section 1.3.3. of the EUAA COI Report Syria – Security Situation \(October 2024\).

When the government of Bashar Al-Assad was toppled, Russia, with its primary focus on the Ukraine war, had limited resources at its disposal for Syria.505 As a result, Russia was unable to offer substantial military support to the Assad government apart from some airstrikes.506

Following the fall of Assad's government, which reportedly came unexpectedly for Russia, Moscow engaged in actions that were described as 'largely reactive'.507 While granting asylum to the former president, Russia shifted to a more balanced,508 albeit cautious, stance towards the country's new rulers.509 Ahmad Al-Sharaa, the leader of the transitional administration, for his part emphasised that he did not want Russia to exit from Syria in a way that undermined Russia-Syria relations,510 describing them as 'strategic'511. Agreements were reached to guarantee the safety of Russian diplomatic staff and to reduce Russian military personnel.512 Later in December 2024, Russia reportedly withdrew its forces from all positions in the country's interior, including Qamishli513 and the frontlines in northern Syria,514 as well as from sites in the Alawite Mountains.515

As of early 2025, Russia still operated two military bases in Syria, namely Hmeimim Airport516 and the Tartous Port in western Syria.517 These bases had not been damaged during the advance of the opposition factions.518 The new Syrian Transitional Administration provided guarantees to avoid any harm to these bases,519 its leader Al-Sharaa initially stating that he would not rule out permitting the Russians to remain.520 As of late January 2025, the transitional authorities have not forced a full exit of Russian forces from Syria.521

However, around mid-December 2024, there were media reports of satellite images suggesting that Russia was preparing to withdraw large amounts of military gear and personnel from Syria.522 Since mid-December 2024, Russian Antonov AN-124 cargo planes and Ilyushin IL-76 aircraft have made regular flights from Hmeimim to al-Khadim, a base in Libya.523 Moreover, in late January 2025, Russian cargo have begun to transport military equipment out of the port of Tartous.524

AP, Turkey and Russia engage in delicate maneuvers over Syria after Assad's downfall, 20 December 2024, url

506

Shahbazov, F., What Turkey Hopes to Gain From the HTS Offensive in Syria, Stimson Center, 5 December 2024, url

507

Melkonian, S., The Syria Fiasco As Seen From Moscow, Carnegie Endowment for International Peace and Malcolm H. Kerr Carnegie Middle East Center, 24 December 2024, url

508

Enab Baladi, Has Russia's and Iran's role in new Syria come to an end?, 7 January 2025, url

509

BBC News, Syrians hope for a future without Russia, but it may not be easy, 13 January 2025, url

510

Enab Baladi, Has Russia's and Iran's role in new Syria come to an end?, 7 January 2025, url

511

BBC News, Syrians hope for a future without Russia, but it may not be easy, 13 January 2025, url

512

Melkonian, S., The Syria Fiasco As Seen From Moscow, Carnegie Endowment for International Peace and Malcolm H. Kerr Carnegie Middle East Center, 24 December 2024, url

513

ISW and CTP, Iran Update, December 23, 2024, 23 December 2024, url, p. 3

514

Reuters, Exclusive: Russia pulling back but not out of Syria, sources say, 15 December 2024, url; New Arab (The), Russia to seek 'long-term and strategic ties' with post-Assad Syria, 26 December 2024, url

515

Reuters, Exclusive: Russia pulling back but not out of Syria, sources say, 15 December 2024, url

516

Moscow Times (The), Russian Air Base in Syria Attacked by Drones – Reports, 18 February 2025, url; Enab Baladi, Has Russia’s and Iran’s role in new Syria come to an end?, 7 January 2025, url

517

Meduza, Russia removes military equipment from Syria’s Tartus, its only naval base in the Mediterranean, 28 January 2025, url; Enab Baladi, Has Russia’s and Iran’s role in new Syria come to an end?, 7 January 2025, url

518

Melkonian, S., The Syria Fiasco As Seen From Moscow, Carnegie Endowment for International Peace and Malcolm H. Kerr Carnegie Middle East Center, 24 December 2024, url

519

Enab Baladi, Has Russia’s and Iran’s role in new Syria come to an end?, 7 January 2025, url

520

BBC News, Syrians hope for a future without Russia, but it may not be easy, 13 January 2025, url

521

AP, Russian government delegation makes first official visit to Syria since Assad’s fall, 29 January 2025, url

522

CNN, Russian military has begun large-scale withdrawal from Syria, US and Western officials say, 16 December 2024, url; Reuters, Exclusive: Russia pulling back but not out of Syria, sources say, 15 December 2024, url; NBC News, Images appear to show Russia dismantling military equipment in Syria, 14 December 2024, url

523

CNN, Spike in Russian flights from Syria to Libyan desert base as Moscow eyes new Mediterranean hub, 31 December 2024, url

524

Meduza, Russia removes military equipment from Syria’s Tartus, its only naval base in the Mediterranean, 28 January 2025, url