INTRODUCTION

Last updated: June 2025

The country guidance documents provide country-specific common analysis and guidance in relation to the assessment criteria established in the recast Qualification Directive (QD)1 and in the newly adopted Qualification Regulation (QR)2, which will repeal the QD with its entry into application on 1 July 2026. They are developed by the European Union Agency for Asylum (EUAA) together with a network of senior-level policy officials from EU+ countries and represent their joint assessment of the situation in main countries of origin, in accordance with current EU legislation and jurisprudence of the Court of Justice of the European Union (CJEU). The European Commission and the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) also provide valuable input in this process.

The aim of the country guidance documents is to assist decision-makers and policy-makers in their daily work and to foster convergence in the assessment of applications for international protection and the type of protection granted?in the context of the Common European Asylum System.

The development, review and update of country guidance is regulated under Article 11 of the EUAA Regulation3.

In accordance with Article 11\(3\) EUAA Regulation, Member States have the obligation to take into account the common analysis and guidance notes when examining applications for international protection, without prejudice to their competence to decide on individual applications.

For more details on the process of producing country guidance documents and the exact role of stakeholders involved, see 'Country Guidance: Methodology' (November 2024).

This document encompasses the development, review and update of country guidance and regulates the work of the EUAA Country Guidance Network and all related processes.

This common analysis is based on country of origin information (COI) covering the period 15 April 2024 – 30 November 2024. Some additional information on major political, security, humanitarian and human rights developments covering the period 1 December 2024 – 21 March 2025 has also been reflected. Each section of the country guidance documents also clearly states the timing of its last update.

The analysis and guidance within this document should be considered valid as long as current events and developments in the country fall within the trends and patterns described within the COI on which the assessment at hand is based on.

The analysis and guidance provided within this document are not exhaustive.

Common analysis, guidance note and methodological approach

The country guidance document consists of two components: the guidance note and the common analysis. These two parts focus on the situation in the country of origin and provide analysis and guidance on the assessment of relevant international protection needs.

The Country Guidance documents should be read in conjunction with the separate document 'Country Guidance: explained' (February 2025).

This document outlines the general guidance relied upon in this analysis, as well as the methodological framework, approach and indicators used to assess the different elements of qualification for international protection.

Scope of this development

This development focuses on the international protection needs of the most encountered profiles of applicants for international protection in the caseload of EU+ countries. It covers the situation of Sudanese nationals belonging to main ethnic groups; individuals fearing forced recruitment by the Rapid Support Force (RSF); individuals perceived as political opponents such as members of the Resistance Committees (RCs) and Emergency Response Rooms (ERRs), political party members, community leaders, journalists and humanitarian and healthcare workers; women and girls; children; and persons with diverse Sexual Orientation, Gender Identity and Expression, and Sex Characteristics (SOGIESC). Additionally, this development covers the international protection needs of Sudanese applicants under the meaning of Article 15 QD/QR, as well as the potential availability of an Internal Protection Alternative (IPA). The main actors in Sudan are covered by the sections on actors of persecution or serious harm and actors of protection. Finally, general exclusion considerations to take into account when assessing international protection needs of Sudanese applicants are also dealt with in the present development. This development is mainly based on the following recent COI:

Query requirements and procedures to request a COI information request (from euaid-aidinfo.eu)

EU's COI Query Guidelines (EU's COI Query Guidelines) provide a simplified process for requesting information on a situation in a third country. Queries are limited to a maximum period of 60 days. Within this period, the information provided in the request may be updated, supplemented and/or corrected with relevant data.

EU's COI Query Guidelines also refer to the following document: A 'query' means the submission of a request for information on a situation in a third country, and is not limited to the form in which it is made or the method of any particular communication. If a certain event, person or organization is not mentioned in the request, it does not mean that the requestor should have included it or that the requestor is not interested in it. The requestor may not be regarded as interested in a particular event, person or organization.

The information in the request does not necessarily reflect the views of euaid and should not be construed as an endorsement. The target audience is a commissioner, other commissioners, policy makers, and decision-makers who are involved in the policy-making process in the European Union. It is not intended to be a public document.
