2.5 Palestinians in Iraq

Iraq falls outside the mandate of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees (UNRWA); therefore, the protection of Palestinian refugees in Iraq is under the jurisdiction of the Iraqi Government and the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR).702

The Palestinian population in Iraq has significantly declined since 2003.703 As of 6 August 2025, a total of 13 926 Palestinian refugees are registered with the Permanent Committee for Refugee Affairs of the Ministry of Interior (PC-Mol).704 Of these, 7 420 Palestinians were also registered with UNHCR as of 1 August 2025, including Palestinian refugees who arrived from Syria since 2011.705 The majority of Palestinian refugees reside in Baghdad, particularly in the Al-Baladiyyat neighbourhood.706 In the KRI, UNHCR registered 910 Palestinians in Erbil, 69 in Sulaymaniyah, and 9 in Dohuk as of June 2025.707 Most Palestinians in the KRI hold the PC-Mol card, often expired due to a lack of PC-Mol missions to the KRI, and the UNHCR refugee certificate. Since 2021, Palestinian refugees who irregularly entered the KRI from Federal Iraq during the conflict with ISIL were given the possibility to regularise their stay through a Personal Identification Card (PIC),708 provided that they meet the following conditions:

- being born in Iraq;
- holding a UNHCR certificate;
- holding a support letter from the Consulate General of the State of Palestine in Erbil;
- obtaining security and medical clearance.709

In 2008, the PC-Mol undertook the registration of Palestinian refugees710 who were recognised as prima facie refugees and were issued national ID cards.711 ID cards can be distinguished from those issued to Iraqi nationals,712 making Palestinians easily identifiable as refugees. 713 However, Iraq does not have a comprehensive legal framework governing the status and protection of refugees in line with relevant international standards.714 Issued by the Ministry of Interior, ID cards are valid for a period of five years for those arrived in 1948 and three years for those arrived in 1967 and subsequently.715 Palestinians not registered as refugees with PC-Mol have regularised their stay with the Residency Directorate based on, for example, a work or family visa.716

According to the 2006 Nationality Law, Palestinian refugees are excluded from naturalisation 'as a guarantee to their right to return to their homeland',717 and therefore do not qualify for Iraqi citizenship.718 In 2017,719 Decree No. 202 of 2001 was repealed.720 The decree had granted Palestinians the same rights as Iraqi citizens 'until the liberation of all Palestinian soil,'721 including access to public sector employment and membership in trade unions.722 Its repeal resulted in their legal status no longer being (near) equivalent to that of Iraqi citizens.723 This legal shift reportedly resulted in legal ambiguity and inconsistent practices, with some Palestinians losing employment and membership in trade unions. UNHCR documented that the revocation of Decree No. 202 also impacted the retirement rights of a Palestinian refugee, depriving his heirs of his retirement salary upon his death.724

Art. No. 23 of the Constitution725 prohibits non-Iraqis from owning property and this restriction equally applies to Palestinians.726 A new directive that entered into force in 2024 prohibited Palestinian refugees from owning taxis, which had been a primary source of income for many.727 A new directive issued by the Ministry of Interior grants residency to foreigners who purchase residential property, subject to specific conditions; however, it remains unclear whether these regulations apply to Palestinians residing in Iraq or what documentation will be required.728

Following the ousting of Saddam Hussein, Palestinians in Iraq faced what has been described as an 'extensive backlash' from society, state institutions, and armed militias. This hostility was linked to perceptions among many Iraqis that the Baath regime had granted Palestinians more favourable conditions, including better access to rights, higher housing standards, and other benefits,729 and to suspicions of their support for ISIL730 or, previously, Al-Qaeda. 731 However, following ISIL's defeat, and relative improvements in the security situation in most parts of Iraq, UNHCR did not report major incidents targeting Palestinians since 2019. Palestinians generally face the same challenges as the broader population, including issues related to security, human rights, and weak rule of law.732

Conditions for Palestinians are characterised by poverty,733 unemployment,734 and overcrowded housing.735 Holders of PC-MoI-issued ID cards generally have access to public schools, health facilities, Public Distribution System (PDS) for food rations, and they are permitted to rent property.736 As in the rest of the population, the availability and quality of such services may vary by area and may be inconsistent, poor, or entirely lacking.737 In the KRI, Palestinian refugees are reportedly allowed to work in the private sector and renew humanitarian residency permits.738

Freedom of movement within Federal Iraq can be restricted for Palestinians with expired ID cards. ID cards are not always recognised or respected at security checkpoints, especially outside Baghdad, further limiting their freedom of movement. UNHCR observed that many Palestinian refugees fear harassment and abuse when crossing checkpoints operated by the PMF.739

To leave Iraq, Palestinians who arrived in 1948 must obtain a travel document from the Residence Affairs Directorate of the Ministry of Interior, while others must use a Palestinian passport issued by the Embassy of Palestine in Baghdad. Travel documents from the Residence Affairs Directorate are valid for one year and permit re-entry into Iraq. 740 Palestinians risk losing their refugee status if they remain outside Iraq for more than one month; 741 in such a case, upon return, they must obtain an entry visa and re-apply for asylum with the PC-Mol. 742 Many Palestinians in Iraq remain stateless 743 and are reportedly subjected to aid cuts and increasing limitations inscribed in Iraqi law. 744

No additional information was found regarding the treatment of Palestinians by state and non-state actors within the time constraints of this report.

UNHCR further noted that the increase in registrations with UNHCR (approximately 6 700 in January 2024) is linked to new arrivals from Syria and Lebanon as a result of the challenging security conditions in these countries as well as the registration of newborns and individuals previously registered only with PC-Mol, UNHCR, email communication to EUAA, 6 August 2025
