

2.6. Journalists and media workers

2.6. Journalists and media workers

Nigeria's media landscape is described as 'rich and diverse',^{511} including both traditional and digital platforms.^{512} In the 2025 World Press Freedom Index,^{513} Nigeria ranked 122nd out of 180 countries (where 1 represents the highest level of press freedom and 180 the lowest), a ten-place decline from the previous year. Governmental interference in the news media remains 'significant', taking the form of pressure, harassment of journalists and outlets, and, in some cases, censorship. Despite the large number of media organisations, few are financially stable. Salary delays make journalists vulnerable to corruption, while politicians, businesses, and advertisers influence editorial content.^{514}

The Nigerian Constitution provides for the right to freedom of expression and the press under Section 39.^{515} Certain laws - such as the provision on defamation in the Penal Code^{516} and the 2015 Cybercrime Act – have, however, been used to obstruct the work of journalists.^{517} In February 2024, the 2015 Cybercrime Act was amended to narrow the definition of cyberstalking under Section 24,^{518} a provision said to be frequently used to arrest journalists.^{519} Although such amendment was defined as a 'timid attempt to promote press freedom', the legislation has continued to endanger investigative journalism,^{520} as it retains heavy penalties^{521} and vague wording.^{522} According to the Nigeria Human Rights Commission, Section 24 in its current form has been applied arbitrarily against individuals for publishing or disseminating content on digital platforms.^{523} From February 2024 to September 2024, Reporters Sans Frontières (RFS) reported that at least eight journalists were arrested, prosecuted, or detained under Nigeria's 2015 Cybercrimes Act since the amendment.^{524}

In 2024, authorities, citing national security concerns,^{525} have intensified a crackdown on journalists and critical voices.^{526} A local NGO - as reported by media sources – found that in 2024, security agencies, including the military and intelligence services were responsible for more attacks on journalists than any other actors. Between January and October 2024, 69 incidents targeting journalists were documented, and law enforcement or security agencies were accountable for 45 % of them.^{527}

The International press Institute (IPI) reported that the highest number of incidents occurred to journalists covering the 10-day #EndBadGovernance protests in August 2024.^{528} (For more information on these protests see 2.7. Protesters). Various sources documented arrests and physical attacks against journalists during the protests.^{529} Media workers have been targeted by both law enforcement officers and unidentified assailants.^{530} On 1 August 2024, hoodlums attacked a ChannelsTV vehicle carrying around 11 journalists covering the protest in Kano.^{531} In Abuja, despite wearing a press jacket, a Premium Times journalist was approached by police officers, who seized his phone, hit him on the head with a gun, and threw him into a police van, from which he was eventually released.^{532} In Maiduguri, nine journalists working for Radio Ndarason Internationale, including its programme director and editor-in-chief, were arrested at the radio station after 'reporting on the current protests throughout the country',^{533} and were released later the same day.^{534} Between 31 July and 3 August 2024, at least 31 journalists were attacked across the country.^{535}

Frequent arrests under the 2015 Cybercrimes Act for online activities have led to growing self-censorship.⁵³⁶ Security agencies ‘intimidated journalists, including editors and media owners’,⁵³⁷ particularly in response to coverage perceived as critical of the government.⁵³⁸ For instance, in September 2024, Haruna Mohammed Salisu and Yawale Adamu, journalists for the WikkiTimes, faced charges of criminal defamation, injurious falsehood and mischief over a report alleging that a federal lawmaker and a businessman conspired to divert public funds.⁵³⁹ Daniel Ojukwu, a journalist with the Foundation for Investigative Journalism who reported on corruption implicating senior Nigerian officials, was abducted by the Intelligence Response Team of the Inspector General of Police on 1 May 2024. Police only confirmed his detention on 3 May 2025, when he was accused of violating the 2015 Cybercrimes Act; he was released on 10 May 2024.⁵⁴⁰ In September 2024, four journalists, editors, and publishers –Olurotimi Olawale, Precious Eze Chukwunonso, Rowland Olonishuwa, and Seun Odunlami– were arrested and later charged with violating sections 24(1)(b) and 27 of the 2015 Cybercrimes Act in connection with reports they had published concerning alleged fraud involving the Chief Executive Officer of Guaranty Trust Bank.⁵⁴¹ The police forced the journalist to take down the reports from their various platforms.⁵⁴² In March 2025, police arrested and detained for three hours two journalists on the order of Kano’s State’s information commissioner after they published an article accusing him of abusing his power.⁵⁴³

Sources reported a lack of mechanisms to protect journalists⁵⁴⁴ and a ‘culture of impunity’,⁵⁴⁵ with authorities ‘rarely’ investigating violations of press freedom.⁵⁴⁶

511

Reporters without Borders, Nigeria, n.d., url

512

Reuters Institute, University of Oxford, Reuters Institute Digital News Report 2024, 17th June 2024, url, p. 160

513

The purpose of the World Press Freedom Index is to compare the level of freedom enjoyed by journalists and media in 180 countries and territories. Source: RSF, Methodology used for compiling the World Press Freedom Index 2025, n.d., url

514

Reporters without Borders, Nigeria, n.d., url

515

Nigeria, The Constitution of the Federal Republic of Nigeria 1999 Updated with the 1st, 2nd and 3rd Alterations (2010), 4th Alteration (2017) and 5th Alteration (2023), September 2024, url, Section 39

516

Reporters without Borders, Nigeria, n.d., url; SERAP (Socio-Economic Rights and Accountability Project), ‘End use of Cybercrime Act against journalists, release those in custody’, SERAP, NGE tell Tinubu govt, others, 5 May 2025, url

517

Nigeria, NHRC, Protection of the Right to Freedom of Expression in Nigeria, 4 April 2025, url

518

Freedom House, Freedom in the World 2025 – Nigeria, 26 February 2025, url; See: Section 24. Section 24(1) is amended by substituting for paragraphs (a) and (b) new paragraphs ‘(a)’ and ‘(b)’ – ‘(a) is pornographic; or (b) he knows to be false, for the purpose of causing a breakdown of law and order, posing a threat to life, or causing such message to be sent’. Source: Nigeria, Cybercrimes (Prohibition, Prevention, Etc) (Amendment) Act, 2024, 28 February 2024, url, p. 3

519

Freedom House, Freedom on the Net 2024 – Nigeria, 16 October 2024, url; RSF, Nigeria: at least eight journalists prosecuted under cybercrime law despite new amendment, 9 September 2024, url

520

Reporters without Borders, Nigeria, n.d., url

521

RSF, Nigeria: at least eight journalists prosecuted under cybercrime law despite new amendment, 9 September 2024, url; Freedom House, Freedom on the Net 2024 – Nigeria, 16 October 2024, url

522

RSF, Nigeria: at least eight journalists prosecuted under cybercrime law despite new amendment, 9 September 2024, url; SERAP, ‘End use of Cybercrime Act against journalists, release those in custody’, SERAP, NGE tell Tinubu govt, others, 5 May 2025, url

523

Nigeria, NHRC, Protection of the Right to Freedom of Expression in Nigeria, 4 April 2025, url

524

RSF, Nigeria: at least eight journalists prosecuted under cybercrime law despite new amendment, 9 September 2024, url

525

IJNET, Citing ‘national security’, Nigerian authorities are cracking down on journalists, 28 October 2024, url

526

HRW, World Report 2025 (Events of 2024), Nigeria, 16 January 2025, url

527

Vanguard, Security agencies identified as major threats to media freedom in Nigeria, 17 December 2024, url;
Premium Times, Security operatives behind attacks against journalists in 2024 – Report, 18 December 2024, url

528

IPI, 2024 IPI Africa monitoring annual round-up, 12 February 2025, url

529

CPJ, Nigerian security forces attack, arrest journalists covering protests, 6 August 2024, url; RSF, Nigeria: RSF sounds the alarm after journalists attacked and arrested while covering protests, 9 August 2024, url;
Premium Times, REPORTER'S DIARY : How this police officer's men attacked me on protest ground, 4 August 2024, url

530

RSF, Nigeria: RSF sounds the alarm after journalists attacked and arrested while covering protests, 9 August 2024, url

531

Punch, #EndBadGovernanceIn Nigeria Protest: Hoodlums attack journalists in Kano, 1 August 2024, url;
Guardian, Hoodlums attack, injure reporters in Kano, 2 August 2024, url

532

Premium Times, REPORTER'S DIARY : How this police officer's men attacked me on protest ground, 4 August 2024, url

533

Radio Ndarason International, Statement to media, 1 August 2024, url; CPJ, In Nigeria, at least 56 journalists attacked and harassed as protests roil region, 21 August 2024, url

534

David L. Smith, [Twitter], posted on 1 August 2024, url; RSF, Nigeria: RSF sounds the alarm after journalists attacked and arrested while covering protests, 9 August 2024, url

535

Premium Times, 31 journalists face brutality of police, security forces during #EndBadGovernance protests, 4 August 2024, url

536

Freedom House, Freedom on the Net 2024 – Nigeria, 16 October 2024, url

537

USDOS, Country Reports on Human Rights Practices for 2023 – Nigeria, 23 April 2024, url

538

USDOS, Country Reports on Human Rights Practices for 2023 – Nigeria, 23 April 2024, url; Freedom House, Freedom on the Net 2024 – Nigeria, 16 October 2024, url

539

CPJ, WikkiTimes publisher reporter face criminal charges over reporting on alleged corruption, 16 September 2024, url

540

FIJ, Highlighting Monthly Attacks on Nigerian Journalists Since World Press Freedom 2024, 6 May 2025, url; NPR, Nigeria has detained a journalist who reported on corruption in a widening crackdown, 9 May 2024, url

541

CPJ, 4 Nigerian journalists face fresh charges over report tying bank CEO to fraud claims, 18 October 2024, url

542

MFWA, Four journalists detained after corruption reporting, denied bail, 6 October 2024, url

543

Kano Times, ASKOJ Condemns Persecution of Journalists, Seeks End to Press Suppression, 25 March 2025, url; Premium Times, Kano State Commissioner Orders Police Arrest of Journalist over ‘Critical’ Article, 25 March 2025, url

544

Reporters without Borders, Nigeria, n.d., url

545

Premium Times, Security operatives behind attacks against journalists in 2024 – Report, 18 December 2024, url

546

International Press Institute (IPI), 2024 IPI Africa monitoring annual round-up, 12 February 2025, url